

For each TF, supplied-split bars count labeled row occurrences in the supplied train/test files, whereas primary-split bars count reconciled logical labeled examples after exact/RC grouping. The two bar families therefore use different counting units.

Supplied split row occurrences versus primary logical examples

